

The Dog Strikes Back Script

By

Sarah Pike and Riley Carson

INT.-LIVING ROOM-DAY

A bored dog is sitting on couch in living room as a car drives by. Slow music is playing.

INT./EXT.-DOOR-DAY

The dog seems happy as he tries to go outside but cannot fit through the door so he goes back inside.

INT.-BEDROOM-DAY

The dog looks depressed as he looks at himself in front of the mirror and whines.

INT.-STAIRS-DAY

The dog has a determination as he drops his ball down the stairs and goes to get the ball. He repeats this process. Music changes to a faster beat.

INT.-LIVING ROOM-DAY

The dog, is happily walking on a treadmill.

INT.-HALLWAY-DAY

The dog seems playful as he pulls weights on a blanket down the hall.

INT.-LIVING ROOM-NIGHT

The dog, now happy, is sitting in front of the television with an exercise ball, watching an exercise show on the television.

INT.-HALLWAY-DAY

The dog is intensively pulling weights on a blanket down the hall.

INT.-KITCHEN-DAY

A woman is cooking and some food drops on the floor. The dog does not eat it, but looks longingly at the food.

EXT.-BACKYARD-DUSK

The dog walks in the snow towards the house.

EXT.-BACKYARD-DAY

The dog runs away from the house.

EXT.-POOL-DAY

The dog seems determined as he jumps into the pool and swims. The dog then dries off.

INT.-BEDROOM-DAY

The dog looks at himself in the mirror and seems pleased so he barks.

INT.-LIVING ROOM-DAY

The dog jumps on the couch and looks out the window to see the same car as the beginning drive by so he barks.

INT.-DOOR-DAY

The dog goes through his door with no difficulty.

EXT.-FRONT YARD-DAY

The dog happily chases the car, jumps over a tree, barks and runs by the side of the car. Someone whistles.
Voice Over: Back...

EXT.-ROAD-DAY

The car drives off down the road.
Voice Over Continued:...And better than ever.

Title:

(MORE)

(CONTINUED)

That's the Power of German Engineering.

INT.-BAR

It zooms out of the title to discover that the dog was an advertisement in a bar. The music changes to a happier tune and people laugh as the other music fades out.

Title on the television:
Das Auto.

Voice Over: That was great.

It then goes to a conversation between two people who are obviously pleased with the advertisement.

One man imitates the kid using the force and casually states,

Kind of miss that Vador kid.

The alien man quickly protests, confidently saying,
The dog was better.

A monster sitting next to them roars in disagreement.

The alien man, as if to start an argument, says,
Are you kidding? The dog is funnier than the Vador kid.

The music stops. We hear some scary music start. The alien man chokes and puts his hand to his throat. The man looks surprised and turns to the alien man and the monster glances at him before knowingly looking across the bar. Monsters stop to look in astonishment.

Darth Vader, across the bar, is shown using the force and we hear him breathing.

The alien man starts breathing again. The monsters look away and the happy music starts again. The alien man, now quiet, makes a gesture and says

Sorry.

Darth Vader turns, with a swish of his coat and leaves. It zoom out and shows the bar again.

End title:
Das Auto.

vw.com

The music cuts off.